In an era where access to funding can make or break the success of community-driven initiatives, understanding how to leverage opportunities from corporate giving programs is essential. The Community Reinvestment Act (CRA) was enacted to ensure that banks and financial institutions play a vital role in supporting the communities they serve, particularly in low- to moderate-income areas. Through the CRA, banks are required to participate in corporate giving, focusing on areas such as affordable housing, small business development, financial literacy, and community revitalization.

This guide is designed to help you find which banks in your area are required to participate in corporate giving, and the types of programs and initiatives they typically fund. Each bank is different, you will need to reach out and inquire about an application process, some are as simple as a letter of inquiry.

Whether you're seeking to build affordable housing, launch a small business, or fund a community initiative, the support you need may be closer than you think. Let's get started on unlocking the potential of CRA funding for your next big project.
